I have loved him from the very first time I saw him. He was already shining bright in my eyes and now the world sees him as I did. Once upon a time, he was my whole world. Now we are strangers. They left me behind, and he shattered my heart....

Have you ever thought the world was against you? That you are one of the unluckiest people alive? Have you ever questioned why it seems no one cares about you?

Charleigh Martinus lives in a world of privilege, but nothing in her life is what it seems. She has been betrayed by those closest to her and taken advantage of by those that she is left behind with. Her hopes and dreams of becoming a songwriter and singer seem so lost to her. Will she find the courage to fight for what she wants or continue down a spiral of despair?

Asher Stewart, the one that got away, has come back into her life with so much hate in his heart for her. But her love for him has never died. He can barely tolerate her, but it seems there are moments when she glimpses the old Asher.

Will her love for him survive through his torment? How can she fight for him when she has to fight for herself? Will her life always be a series of opportunities she lets pass by or will her luck change? Life is about choices, some bad, some good, and some are just the luck of the draw....
